Centenary is a church-related, fully accredited four year Liberal Arts College of high academic standing, offering the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, and Bachelor of Music. With a distinguished faculty and small classes, it attempts to foster the development of each student according to his individual needs.

CENTENARY STUDENTS LIKE TO LEARN...

WORSHIP...AND HAVE FUN

In a recent survey of 489 American colleges and universities, it was revealed that in production efficiency of scientists Centenary ranked first in Louisiana, Arkansas & Texas and eighth in the entire South.

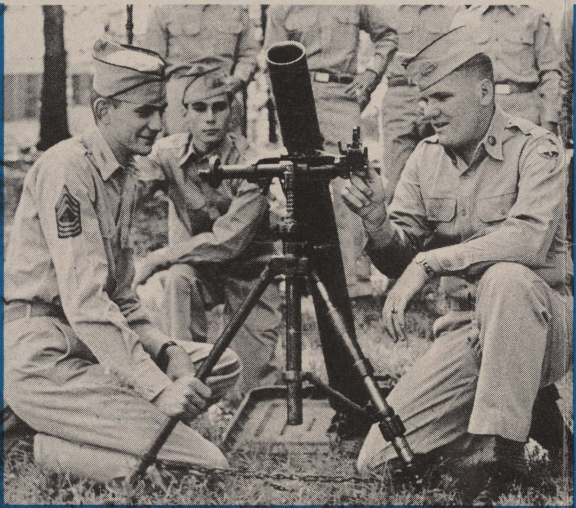

Centenary was one of the first colleges in the nation to institute a seminar on great issues of the day. The Senior seminar program extends into all divisions of the college.

There are beautiful lakes near Shreveport if you like to go fishing, boating or just look at the water.

Whether you like your social life formal or informal, you'll find lots of other young people at Centenary who feel the same way.

You can earn a commission in the Army while taking your regular college work.

More than a thousand people from the Shreveport area drive to the campus to attend evening classes.

The Maroon Jackets are official hostesses. They'll help you get acquainted on the campus.

Like to sing? Then the Choir is looking for you. It's the most from coast to coast.

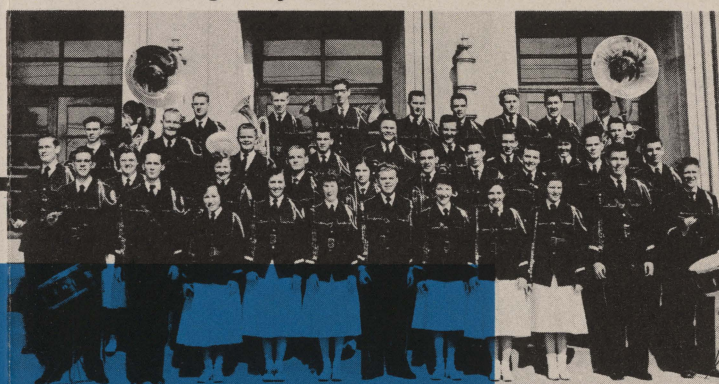

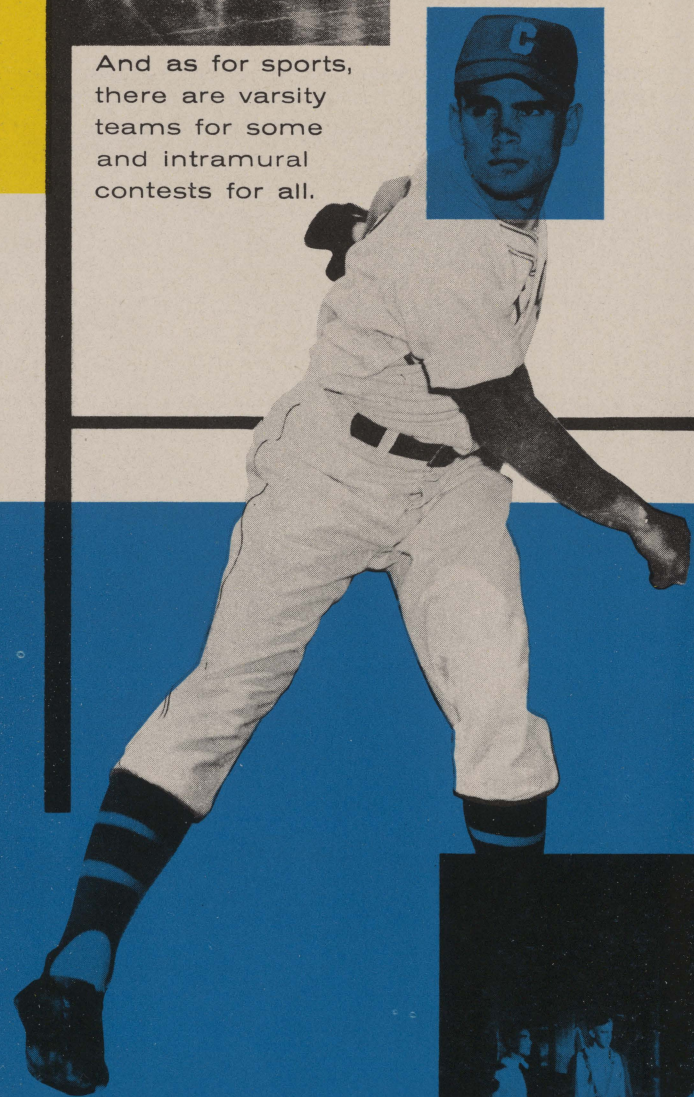

Centenary, as a Methodist sponsored and related institution, believes that religion has a very proper place in higher education. The college is not narrowly sectarian, however, and five denominational student groups are organized on its campus. Regular chapel services are held in the Brown Memorial Chapel.

And as for sports, there are varsity teams for some and intramural contests for all.

If you can blow something or beat something and make music, there's a band uniform waiting for you.

Like the smell of grease paint? The Centenary Playhouse is known for its outstanding productions of classics and popular plays.

You'll hear and see some of the big name artists from the musical, literary, and theatrical worlds on the annual lyceum program.
